National Tabbouleh Day 2014

0 comment 13 views

Jul 5

For the seventh year in a row, Beirut will celebrate “National Tabbouleh Day“on Saturday July 5, in an event that has been organized by Souk el Tayeb since 2007 and in collaboration with Ricardo Mbarkho.

The event has been approved by the Ministry of Tourism (MOT) who announced the first Saturday of each July to be officially called ”National Tabbouleh Day”.

The idea for this special day, however, is much older and first came to Mbarkho in 1996, when, in France, he was confronted with a tinge of nostalgia for authentic Lebanese tabbouleh.

During “National Tabbouleh Day”, the public is invited to participate, savor and take home the best traditional, winter or creative tabbouleh.

The event will take place on Tripoli Street,Beirut Souks (Downtown Beirut), where people savoring and competing will enjoy the best tabbouleh, from 9:00 am till 2:00 pm
